

My name is Jonathan Morgan and I am 12 years old. I am also a student at a public school. (Carpenter Middle School) Here are a few events:

- During a student council meeting, we were told to write happy holidays on Christmas cards. Our teachers were frightened that it would offend someone of a different culture and religion. For me that was a real shame because it was during Christmas season. Why can't we write about Christmas during Christmas season?
- One more event occurred during our Christmas party. I was told that I couldn't put the legend of the candy cane in the bags I was going to pass out. Since the message had to do with Jesus, they wouldn't allow it to be passed out. What I don't understand is why can't kids hand out messages talking about Jesus when it is Christmas time, the time of Jesus' birth?
- I don't like having my Christmas bags censored and writing happy holidays on Christmas cards.
- Please help to protect children's right to share a religious viewpoint?
