I object to current redistricting proposal. Texas gained the most residents of any state since 2010. Of these new residents, 95% are either Tejano, Afro-American or Asian American Pacific Islander (AAPI). In spite of these irrefutable facts, the Texas State Senate district maps proposed crack these communities apart in many places to dilute their voting influence and pack them together in others to reduce competition. In a nutshell, these proposed maps are stealing non-white seats at the table. This is a violation of the Voting Rights Act of 1965.
