This should not even be a thing. The lines should be drawn to where every person gets one vote that counts as only one vote and we should also have ranked voting. I should be able to vote for both parties in the primaries and not just one or the other while we are at it. Pick a way to draw the lines and do it by area like a city or a county. The shapes should not look like a child's drawing, it should like the counties in the state and/or run along lines that are already established and agreed upon like city and county lines. Quit trying to cheat for either side and play fair by leveling the playing field. Why is that so difficult to understand? If your party's platforms stink, then you should lose the election and not manipulate it to make you win. That is cheating, and cheating should not be legal or tolerated and if you cheat you forfeit your right to office.
